

RUSSIAN FLIERS LAND; HAD BEEN MISSING OVER CALIFORNIA SINCE LAST MIDNIGHT, FOLLOWING FLIGHT OVER POLE

Three Intrepid Fliers Reach San Jacinto, California — Faced Polar Storms and Coast Fog in Record Flight Over Polar Ice Cap

(By International News Service)

SAN JACINTO, Cal., July 14—Russia's amazing second trans-Polar plane landed here today, setting a new distance flying record.

The three intrepid aviators had been in the air since 4.22 p. m., Pacific standard time, Sunday, when they lifted their big single-motored ship from a field near Moscow, and headed for the North Pole. The fliers raced over the Polar cap with its icy storm, and dashed down the coast over Alaska and British Columbia, into the United States.

The old long distance record hung up in 1933 by the French airmen, Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi, when they flew 5,657 miles from New York to Syria, already has been shattered by the three Soviet airmen in the big single-motored trans-Polar plane—Pilot Mikhail Gromov, Co-Pilot Major Andrei Yumashev and Navigator Sergei Danilin.

When they passed San Francisco today they had flown 6,250 miles since taking off from Moscow at 4.22 p. m. (p. s. t.) Sunday.

At 12.4 a. m. the Seattle Army Signal Corps relayed a message from the plane to the Army Radio Station, here, advising that the plane would continue southward.

This report came after the "Pole-vaulting" airmen had asked for weather reports at Los Angeles and San Diego, requesting the ceiling of visibility be given in meters and that each word in the weather instructions be repeated twice.

At frequent intervals the Army stations radioed weather reports to the airmen, advising that a low fog hung over the entire San Francisco Bay area.

Just what time the transpolar plane passed over the Golden Gate was not determined, but Acting Soviet Consul Gregori Gokhman in San Francisco, who was at Oakland airport with a party of officials to greet his comrades from Moscow, took off in a privately chartered plane at 1.45 a. m., "headed south."

Gokhman took off in the chartered plane with his reception party after a report had been received that the plane had passed over Oakland Airport at 1.28 a. m. The source of this report was confused along with numerous other reports circulated as the big red plane, soaring at 15,000 feet, approached the Golden Gate.

Others declared the plane passed over the Golden Gate about 1 a. m.

The Army signal corps station here, tuned in on the transpolar plane's radio frequency, and also in communication with the Army signal corps at Seattle, said the last official report was the 12.18 a. m. advice from the plane.

If the Russian airmen land at San Diego they will have flown 6,700 miles. As the plane streaked down from the top of the world, having crossed the North Pole at 4.14 p. m. Monday, just eight minutes short of 24 hours after their take-off from Moscow, thousands of Pacific Coast residents maintained a midnight watch for the red plane.

But they were denied a glimpse of the plane which had conquered blinding snow storms near the pole by the inevitable low-lying fogs.

Just before taking off in the chartered plane from Oakland Airport Gokhman declared it was highly possible the fliers would set down at March Field, the Army airport at Riverside. "That is only a possibility, however," he smiled. "The object at hand is to find out just where the plane is."

At the same time officials of Oakland airport revealed the United States signal corps had instructed all Army airports to "seize the film and camera in the plane if the plane lands at any Army port."

Expert Stained Glass Worker Dies at His Home

DOYLESTOWN, July 14—One of the most skilled stained glass workers in America, Charles A. Parker, 77, died suddenly at his home here yesterday. He was actively engaged in his craft up until a short time before his death. Death followed a stroke of apoplexy.

Parker had been associated with George W. Sotter's stained glass studios at Holicong for 12 years and was formerly in the Sotter studios in Pittsburgh for 20 years. He came to the United States from his home town, Birmingham, England, as a fully trained stained glass craftsman and he became so expert that he was looked upon as one of the most famous in America in his work.

As foreman of a number of studios, Parker trained many of the younger men in the craft.

The funeral will be held in Pittsburgh where his children reside. The survivors include four children, one son, three daughters and two sisters.

BRITAIN'S ELECTORATE IS UNITED AS NEVER BEFORE, EXCEPT IN WAR TIME, FOR PEACE TO BE ENFORCED BY ARMED STRENGTH OF EMPIRE

No Peacetime Issue Has Ever Been So Unanimously Supported

IS WAR AGAINST WAR

Realizes That the Nation Cannot Afford to Lose a War

(Following is the sixth of a series of 12 articles by H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, discussing the new outlook on the world horizon, created by Great Britain's huge rearmament program.)

LONDON, July 14—Two years ago over 11,000,000 citizens of Great Britain voted for peace, to be enforced by the League, but this year the electorate of over 1,000,000 is united as perhaps never before, except in war time, for peace to be enforced by Britain's armed strength.

No peacetime issue has been so unanimously supported by the entire population of Britain, but this is because though peace still nominally obtains, the British now feel that their rearmament is truly a war measure, against war.

Lloyd's, headquarters of the insurance business of the world, has just announced that it will write no more insurance against war risks. Not that Lloyd's considers war so imminent, but after long reflection upon the character of this business, which in itself is highly profitable so long as peace lasts, it was finally realized that should a grown-up war come to pass, no insurance company would be able to pay, as the destruction would be too great.

Britain has finally awakened to the decisive fact that modern Great Britain is the only European nation which cannot under any circumstances afford to lose a war. Continental nations can lose and recover, as they have from time immemorial. The British Isles are dependent for every second mouthful of food upon imports. A lost war, meaning, a defeated navy or army and air force, would mean that Britain would become permanently subject to the victorious Power.

Just as the dimensions of the disaster of a modern war impressed Lloyd's so much that it will not accept the risk of war insurance, so the consequences of possible war for the population have finally compelled even this most peace loving of the European Powers to rearm. Their moral sacrifice in having to abandon their faith in the possibility of disarmament "in our time," was in a way as great as the financial sacrifice rearmament imposes.

The strength of British hope in the League's power to prevent war, as against Britain's or any other single nation's endeavor to keep the peace by force, was documented in the famous peace ballot. In this nation-wide poll around eleven million persons recorded their desire that Britain remain in the League work for reduction of armaments in general and complete abolition of war planes.

After the peace ballot came the debacle of Britain's attempt to stop Italy's conquest of Abyssinia by League action. Today it is certain that most of the 11,000,000 peace balloters

376 FAIL TO PAY SCHOOL TAX AT DOYLESTOWN

Exonerations Total $1,128, According to Report of Tax Collector

ELECT NEW TEACHER

DOYLESTOWN, July 14—At a meeting of the Doylestown School Board held on Monday evening, 376 County Seat taxpayers were exonerated from paying school taxes. The exonerations amounted to $1,128.

"That means that 376 people, most of whom have children attending school, refuse to pay for the education of their children," said President William H. Satterthwaite, Jr.

Tax Collector Russell B. Gulick, who was re-elected, submitting his report, stated that he has turned over to the school board the sum of $46,000 in taxes.

Of the more than 400 delinquents, Tax Collector Gulick managed to collect taxes from 27 persons. This totaled $85.95. In most cases it was necessary to notify employers or attach wages through the co-operation of a "boss."

Both the Doylestown Emergency Hospital and the Doylestown Fire Company, as usual, were exonerated by the board as has been the custom for the past decade or more.

Upon the recommendation of Supervising Principal J. Leonard Halderman, the board elected as head of the science department Andrew Leonard Raab, 322 West Broad street, Tamarcus.

Mr. Raab, who was graduated from Tamarcus High School and Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., summa cum laude, has done graduate work at Princeton University and at Temple University.

He has taught two years in Paulsboro High School, Paulsboro, N. J., and is married.

He was elected at a salary of $1500. The new instructor, who is 28 years old, was valedictorian in both his high school and college classes.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he graduated from Colgate in 1933, studying at Princeton for a year later, 1934. Supervising Principal Halderman stated that 63 boys and 46 girls are enrolled in the Summer school.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY

Between 50 and 60 persons, a majority of them descendants of the late Joseph K. and Amy Fox, who more than half a century ago resided in Tinicum, attended the annual reunion of the Fox family, held at Warrington on Saturday.

Owing to the intense heat, there was no program, but the children enjoyed a number of games and the men pitched quoits. Joseph K. Fox, born in 1834, and his wife, Amy Fox, who was born in 1840, were the parents of 15 children, and they and their descendants have located in various communities in this part of the country.

At an adjourned meeting of Doylestown Borough Council, A. Harry Clayton, who has served as a member of that body since 1928 and as president of Council all but two months during that period, resigned because he is no longer a resident of the First Ward.

D. Ralph Stone, of East State street, was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Councilman Clayton, who is now a resident of the Third Ward.

Senator Jos. T. Robinson Found Dead in His Room; Democratic Senate Leader

By International News Service

Washington, July 14—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democrat leader of the Senate since 1922, was found dead today at his apartment, just a stone's throw from the Capitol.

The veteran legislator died between 7 and 8 a. m.

He was found on the floor of his apartment, clad in his pajamas.

He would have been 65, August 26.

His death may end the week long battle in the Senate over President Roosevelt's Supreme Court bill.

This possibility arose because under ordinary circumstances the Senate adjourned out of respect for the memory of its members.

An adjournment of the Senate now would give opponents of the judicial bill a new lease on life since they have been debating the bill for eight days on the legislative day of last Tuesday.

Bans "Stunt Flying"

New York, July 14—Due to Amelia Earhart's disappearance on a round-the-world flight, United States government decided to ban all trans-oceanic "stunt flying" by Americans.

The immediate effect was to check preparations for two more spectacular world girdling flights, one by Howard Hughes, millionaire speed flier and the other by Dick Merrill who has made two round trips across the Atlantic, and Mark Hellinger, New York columnist.

NUMBER OF RELIEF CASES SHOWS SLIGHT DROP

Report States 298 Cases On Relief at Week Ending July 3rd

TOTAL OF 1,123 PERSONS

During the week ending July 3, there was a slight reduction in the total number of cases carried on the direct relief rolls in Bucks County, with a total of 298 cases, consisting of 1,123 persons, remaining on the rolls at the end of the week, as compared with a total of 312 cases, or 1,187 persons carried at the beginning of the week. This represented a net weekly decrease of 14 cases, or 64 persons.

A review of the total expenditures for direct relief grants over the first six months of the year, shows that by the end of June, approximately $92,000 had been spent for direct relief grants, exclusive of all administrative costs. The average weekly expenditures during each month since January has followed closely the trend in the caseload. Thus, expenditures were increasing during the first three months of the year, and since March, have been declining at approximately the same rate as the total relief rolls.

However, each of these figures has not varied absolutely uniformly due to slight fluctuations in the average weekly grant per case.

It was observed that there were nine boroughs and three townships in which there were no cases carried on the relief rolls last week.

YOUTH IN CAMP

Reports from all parts of the country indicate that there is an unprecedented number of boys and girls in summer camps. This is the best of news for the boys and girls, their fathers and mothers and the nation at large. It means that young people are not being deprived of one of the most important of all of life's assets—a knowledge of the outdoors and a love of its wonders.

This great army of youngsters, whose everyday lives are lived, for the most part, remote from the great masterpieces of Nature, are going into the heart of the woods, or along the shores of a river or a crystal-clear lake and they are learning how to sail a boat, handle a canoe, to recognize a maple and an oak and a pine, to identify birds and fish and the denizens of the woods and to fathom many of the other secrets of the outdoors.

And, when their two or three weeks in a tent or a cabin are ended, they return home brown, strong and self-reliant and with greatly increased potentialities of good citizenship. These camps, when they are efficiently conducted and under the direction of those who are cognizant of their responsibilities and their opportunities for the development of robust and clean-minded young men and women, are vital assets to the nation's life.

DANGER IN REDUCING

Every woman or girl embarked upon or contemplating a campaign to reduce her weight, if that involves the use of anti-fat preparations, should heed the deadly serious warning against formulas containing dinitrophenol. The use of this drug has been condemned by the federal food and drug administration, as it has caused frequent cataracts and even total blindness.

Several anti-fat preparations contain, or have contained, this product. The federal authorities have been rooting out those that do. Some of them will reduce avoirdupois but at the risk of permanent injury to the eyes. State authorities, too, are warning on them.

WHY PROLONG LIFE?

This question is raised, incidentally, by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal.

Society has always taken for granted that prolongation of life is a worthy and desirable purpose, and medical science, through brilliant achievements in combating the ravages of disease, has increased life expectancy and multiplied greatly the number of the aged.

But what has society done to meet the conditions arising from the lengthened life span? The net result of this accomplishment is a greater number of aged who lack the necessities of life and who are, in consequence, victims of neglect.

Long life is not a boon when it is attended by want and misery. It is not pleasant to live when all of the joys and even the satisfaction of life have fled.

The Spanish free-for-all may lead to something bigger. We must wait till the foreigners on the winning side try to cut themselves in on a soldiers' bonus.

Two hundred Hollywood policemen were on hand to see that a young leading man was wed. It's no use, fellow—you can't win.

All work and no play, under the 30-hour week, would be hard to find.

SYNOPSIS

It had been a wonderful picnic, Lucinda Stanford enjoying every minute of it even though Howard Scott, the artist, persisted in proposing for the hundredth time. The storm comes up. Someone puts a pail of water over the door intended for Bertie Sprigg, a sponger, but Lucinda gets soaked instead. While her clothes are drying, she wraps herself in a gunny-sack and tired out, falls asleep in the hay. Later, the crowd goes off and leaves her, believing she has gone ahead in another car. Lucinda awakens at four o'clock the next morning and rushes from the barn terrified. Wealthy Carter Chalaire finds her by the roadside and takes her to his home. After a refreshing bath, and dressed in a pair of Carter's pajamas, Lucinda feels like Cinderella. Carter, greatly attracted, asks her if she could learn to like him. Her heart leaps, but she answers lightly, "That's a tall order. For all you know I may be engaged or even married."

CHAPTER III

"Engagements are old-fashioned. And I don't believe at your infantile age you'd be so silly as put your pretty little neck into a noose."

"Great heavens! How old do you think I am?"

"You look fifteen as you sit here. But by a stretch of the old imagination, you might be three years older than that."

"Silly! I'm twenty-one."

"So? And free and white?"

"Not very free. I work pretty hard. I tell you. This is a—a kind of a red-letter night for me, you know."

"Are you referring to your revets in the barn?"

"I certainly feel at peace with all the world just now. This beautiful room—and the fire—and the cheery highball—and yet—I admit—the company!"

"Thanks for putting me last. I see I must work to make an impression."

"Please don't," she said nervously, with an uncertain little smile, for the nearness of this handsome young man was disturbing. "Sit back, like a nice boy, and tell me how it came that you were out so late this evening."

"Oh, the usual Saturday night in town. Dinner with another fellow. And then a show. A dull show. Most shows are flops these days. And then on to the Mayfair Club. That's always interesting."

Lucinda sat up, her eyes shining. "You mean the Saturday night party in the Ritz where the actors and actresses and the movie people meet? And you have to be a movie star to get in? Oh, tell me about it. My sister and I have sometimes stood outside on Saturday nights just to get a glimpse of the stars. There are always people on the sidewalk then. Autograph hunters."

"But you aren't one of them?"

Lucinda said, "Please tell me about this fascinating night-club!"

The young man smiled at her eager face. Enthusiastic child! Could it be possible that anyone so pretty and alluring could be so unsophisticated? Or was she spoofing him? "It's held in the Crystal Room, and quite a pretty scene. There's the red-carpeted staircase going down, you know, with banks of flowers on either side. Offers a grand stage-entry for the actresses. They love it."

"Only actresses can go there?"

Her face fell.

The social lights crowd in to stare at the theatrical crowd, and vice-versa. You can't be a member unless you're on the stage or screen. But you can usually get in on the acquaintance and pass of some actor chap, or if you're with an actress. As a matter of fact, the secretaries are very strict. It's almost necessary to get in with a member."

"And what do you do when you do get in?"

"The usual thing. Dancing. Grand music. Buffet supper."

She added, "And flirting with the stars, of course?" She forced herself to inquire, for it seemed superfluous with a rich and handsome boy like this: "You know lots of them?"

Her wistful tone was not lost on him.

"Well, everyone who knocks around the town sooner or later meets most people, don't they?" He added: "Look here, I'll take you there one night. You'll knock most of the so-called beauties into a cocked hat for looks. Wouldst like to make the grand entrance with me, fair Lucinda?"

She beamed like a little girl. Then her face clouded.

"But I haven't got the clothes. I mean, they dress so magnificently. Then her forehead smoothed out as a thought came. "Maybe Bubbles the bearskin rug. He touched his glass to the one he had just given her. He said: "I like you, Lucinda."

"Ouch! That's terribly strong. That would take the varnish off the floor if I spilled it!" she protested. "Try again. It'll thaw you out. What's the harm in putting up the temperature a little, Lucinda?"

But she was firm. It was all very well to drink with the picnic gang, whom she knew so well, but "quite another pair of shoes" (as the French say) to consume hard liquor at four in the morning entirely alone with a stranger. She had to jerk herself back to common sense, because he was so very likable.

"All right. All right. Diluted it shall be." He rose and went over to the little table. He filled her glass with soda to the top, handed it to her with a bow, and went back to the armchair beside the refreshment table, flinging himself rather carelessly into it. As he did so, his elbow caught the corner of the tray, so that—try as he did to prevent the crash—both the heavy decanter of cut crystal and the soda-water syphon bounded and smashed upon the hard parquet.

The noise was like a clap of thunder. It shattered the silence of the house. Lucinda sprang to her feet, grabbing her elbow which was drying in front of the fire.

"Great heavens! I'll run! You'll have wakened everybody!"

"Sh-sh. Wait. The only one who might come is Jenkins. Don't be so frightened."

"But I am! What shall I do?" Lucinda's hands were shaking so that she could only get her still wet shoes on with difficulty.

"Then go in my bedroom, like a good child."

"No. Isn't there a way out of here except through the front hall?"

"Fraid not. Jenkins keeps the back door locked. Now drink your little drink and then we'll go, since you're so nervous."

"But—if anyone should come—"

The words literally froze on her lips as the door of the room swung open, and in the aperture—with horror and disgust upon her face as she stared at the pajama-clad vision that—Lucinda—appeared a tall, hand, an elderly lady in a peignoir.

New Industry Promises Prosperity for South

Discovery of a method of converting rice hulls, formerly discarded after threshing time, into cellulose and paper pulp promises to bring new industrial prosperity to the south. In Louisiana, where the rice crop annually is worth about $17,000,000, production of this new by-product is expected to yield revenue far in excess of that amount. Cellulose is used in scores of manufacturing processes and has industrial potentialities which have been only partially tapped by the infant industry.

GRABER TO FIGHT LAST AMATEUR BOUT TONIGHT

The amateur boxing show to be conducted by the St. Ann's Athletic Association in its outdoor arena tonight will be a tribute to Harry "Reds" Graber, 147 lb. East Side mittman. Graber will abandon the amateur field after tonight's bout and join the ranks of professional fighters.

Grabers who ranks with the greatest of 147 pounders in the game loved to fight in this vicinity. He always fought clean and gave the fans their money's worth. He never backed down on any fight and twice fought Richard Donahue at the request of the Bristol fans. On one occasion, Donahue came in overweight and should have fought in the 160 pound class, but not to disappoint the local fight patrons, Graber fought him in a weight of a fight, the red-head was for his foe tonight.

For his foe tonight, Harry has chosen the leading 147 pounder in the amateur game today. He is Jack Frazier, Sigma Theta, who won the last tournament. Graber is anxious to close his amateur career with a triumph, in fact, he wants a knockout and those who see tonight's bout will see the current-topped youngster in there for three rounds of boring in.

Match-maker Sammy Moffo has arranged for several other top-notch bouts which would take the wind-up on any boxing card. He has a return match between Billy Henderson, East Side, and Louis Swartz, Newsboy A. C. These two youths fought several weeks ago in a driving rain. For three rounds the youngsters did nothing but slug each other with neither giving an inch to the other. Swartz won but it was very, very close. Swartz copped a close decision from Tally Scarra two weeks ago.

Sammy Sindora, St. Ann's, will fight his toughest foe of the season in Johnny Granger, Sigma Theta. Granger was a runner-up in the last tournament in Philadelphia and is out to stop the five-fight winning streak of the St. Ann's mittman. Sylvester Purnell, St. Ann's, will have his hands full in fighting the skiffy Sammy Fischer. Fischer is boasting of a long string of victories but Purnell has finally struck his stride and won his last two fights by knockouts.

Moffo intends to secure bouts for the following before the first bout goes on: Hokey Leighton, Al Paris, Vince Della, Alfred Zeffries and Fred Astino.

The first bout will go on at eight-thirty o'clock sharp.

PORT RICHMOND LIKELY TO PROVE STIFF OPPONENT

The Landreth Seeds and Port Richmond game at the Landreth ball park this evening should be a close game. When these clubs met several weeks ago the score was 3 to 3. Since that time Port Richmond has won 16 or 17 games out of 21 and the Farmers have won 11 out of the last 15.

Port Richmond is a member of the Quaker City League and last week defeated Johnny Mulholland's Bristol A. A. 19 to 1 in a seven inning game.

The Farmers will have their hands full this evening if they are to defeat the visitors.

EDGELEY BRAVES TO PLAY FIRST TWILIGHT GAME

The Edgely Braves will play their first twilight independent game of the season tonight when they meet the strong Trenton Ukrainian Club on the Edgely diamond. The first ball will be pitched across the plate at 6:15 o'clock sharp.

Manager Fred Hibbs was a bit dismayed at the showing his club made against the North Phillies last Sunday and felt as if his club should have walked off the field with an easy triumph as they certainly did outplay the visitors.

Hibbs will start Punkie Zeffries against the Jersey club. Vanzant will do the receiving. Hibbs will be at first; Heftman, second; Carlen, short; Joe Roe, third; Watson, left; Bilger, right, and Breslin, center.

GRUNDY NINE WINS SECOND GAME IN A ROW; SCORE, 5-3

The Grundy Mill team and the Odd Fellows almost played a night baseball game last evening. Darkness was closing in on the field when Empire Joe Kervick decided the teams had played enough and called the game at the last half of the seventh. The score reverted back to the sixth gave the Grundy nine a 5-3 triumph, their second in a row.

A long argument in the first half of the seventh caused the game to be over without completion of the seventh. The argument started when Johnny Dick was caught off third by the hidden ball play but was declared safe when Empire Kervick ruled that Pitcher Tommy Muffett was in the box at the time of the play. Both clubs accused the other of stalling and before the first half of the seventh was over the Odd Fellows had taken a 7-5 lead.

Tommy Muffett pitched the Grundy club to victory and his stick was also a big factor in spilling the Odds. He made two hits, driving in a run in the last inning and scoring twice himself. It was his single in the fifth which started a Grundy two-run rally.

Three runs in the sixth gave the game to the pacesetters. Narcisi opened with a walk and was sacrificed to second by Kervick. Muffett then singled Narcisi home. A stolen base, a fielder's choice and an error by G. Ritter counted two more runs.

The winning combination made nine hits off Minister while the losing team was credited with eight, although in justice to the team it must be stated that four hits were erased off the book in the seventh, including a double by Alex Dewanap.

DEVLIN LOSES CHANCE TO PROVE HIMSELF A HERO

Roy Devlin passed up an opportunity to be a hero to the Superior Zinc team's baseball fans last night. The Superior hurler stepped to the plate in the final inning with the sacks loaded, one run to tie and two to win. But like the mighty Casey, Devlin went down on strikes.

The zinc smelters rallied in the last frame, scored twice but fell one run shy of the St. Ann's total as the Saints chalked up their first win of the second half. Final tabulations were: St. Ann's 5; Superior, 4.

Bragg started the Superior rally with a single past second base. Stallone grounded out and Wright fanned. Tulo kept up the works with a hit and when Stromp doubled to right two runs crossed. McCue got on base via an error by Dougherty. Red Cummons received four base ones and the sacks were crowded. Devlin ended in dismal fashion by whiffing.

Both clubs had eight hits in the tilt. The opposing twirlers were Charlie Whyno, St. Ann's, and Roy Devlin, Superior. Whyno struck out five and passed two. Devlin was much wilder. He walked three and hit three batters. In the final frame when St. Ann's counted three runs, wildness was the chief devil of the markers.

Devlin hit Sagolla to start the canto and then issued four bad ones to Pico. Paul Moore, Tony Angelo and Charlie Whyno followed with clean hits and with the aid of a fielder's choice, three counters were made.

Britain's Electorate United For Peace by Armed Force

would vote for rearmament.

The Labor party votes against the defense appropriation but if it were ever to conceive that its vote would stop rearmament it would reverse its vote. It opposes solely because it is the Opposition, His Majesty's Opposition.

Its leader, Mr. C. R. Atlee, enjoying the crowning glory of the British democratic system, receives $10,000 a year from the Government to oppose the Government, and if he did not oppose would fall in his duties.

His most difficult duty is leading the vote against rearmament because, believing in it just as firmly as the Government, labor's only opposition grounds is that "we agree it's got to be done, but we don't trust you to do it."

Only one group in England is against rearmament, and this one though intellectually important, is of no political consequence. The die-hard pacifists, organized in the "constructive peace" movement led by the Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard, canon of St. Paul's, have distinguished members: Bertrand Russell, Aldous Huxley, General F. P. Crozier, Lord Ponsonby, Sigfried Sassoon, Rose Macaulay, Storm Jameson and the master of the Labor Party, George Lansbury.

Their position was succinctly put by Bertrand Russell: "Britain should disarm and if Hitler marched his troops into this country when we were undefended, they should be welcomed like tourists and greeted in a friendly way." This he contended would morally disarm the German troops and they would go home.

Huxley, famous grandson of the great Thomas Henry Huxley, who helped formulate the doctrine of survival of the fittest, defines the Pacifist view: "If you treat other people well, other people will generally treat you well. If you have the opportunity of going on treating them well, they will at last invariably reciprocate your treatment."

Germany, Italy and Japan, he points out, are alike in that all suffer from a sense of grievance. He puts their position thus: "Germany suffered military defeat and prolonged humiliation. During the boom years she was helped for purely commercial motives, by allied and American capitalists, who helped to earn large profits by financing German industry."

"Then came the slump: As much foreign capital as could be withdrawn was withdrawn, tariff barriers were everywhere set up, or, if they already existed, raised still higher. It became more and more difficult for German industrialists either to sell what they had manufactured or, owing to monetary difficulties and the absence of colonies, to procure raw materials. The Nazis have promised to extricate Germany from this intolerable situation by force of arms, if necessary."

"Italy emerged from the war nominally a victor, but in fact little the better off for her espousal of the Allied cause. The clauses of the disgraceful secret treaties were not, because they could not be, fulfilled, and the Italians received no colonial mandates. Emigration of Italians was progressively restricted until during the slump it fell almost to zero. For more than 13 years the Fascists have been promising to make Italy great and prosperous. Since October, 1935, they have been attempting to keep that promise at the expense of Abyssinia."

"At the Versailles peace conference, the Japanese were collectively insulted by President Wilson, who insisted that a nation of yellow men could not be treated on the same terms as a nation of white men. During the succeeding years tariff barriers have everywhere been raised against cheap Japanese goods, while America and the British Dominions have completely prohibited the immigration of Japanese citizens."

"Meanwhile in Japan, population has rapidly increased. In Japan the army has done what the Nazis and the Fascists did in Germany and Italy; it has promised to rescue the country from its present plight by force of arms. What is more,—it has begun to fulfill this promise at the expense of China."

"What the Japanese have done in Manchuria, the Italians are trying to do in Abyssinia and the Germans are hoping to do in middle Europe and possibly Russia."

Now, asserts Huxley, the solution is not rearmament of Britain but that "the great monopolistic powers should immediately summon a conference at which the unsatisfied powers, great and small, should be invited to state their grievances and claims. When this has been done it would be possible, given intelligence and good will, to work out a scheme of territorial, economic and monetary readjustments for the benefit of all."

To this the British government, Parliament and electorate reply that it is their regretful experience that there are many people in the world who will not treat you well even if you treat them well. They have come to realize that arms are not evil in themselves, but in the hands of good men are good and in the hands of bad men arms are evil.

A pacifist most renowned of all, Albert Einstein, told a Belgian newspaper, when he emerged from Nazi Germany, that "If I were a young Belgian today I would not refuse military service."

Britain's first pacifist victim of the "next war," was Walter James Clayfield, a blacksmith, who refused to pay income tax on the ground it would be used for armaments. The judge gave him five days in prison. His objections against war were no more conscientious than those of the majority of Britishers, who nevertheless believe their way will more surely prevent war than his.

Using "Electric Eyes" To Count Highway Traffic

county; south of Tire Hill, near Fennedale, Somerset county, on route 53; on the Lincoln Highway between Bedford and Schellsburg in Bedford county; north of McConnellsburg, Fulton county, on route 522; east of Centre Square, Montgomery county, on route 73; near Ford City, Armstrong county, on route 68; and north of Wilksburg on route 80.

Field work of the entire survey has been practically finished and the job of analyzing the voluminous data now is in the final stages. When the project is completed, it should have collected information showing where roads are needed most urgently and the type of road best suited to a particular section.

Thus, highway building of the future will be planned on the basis of need, worth and relative importance in the entire network of state arteries.

I am proud to state that such a program comes as another forward stride for the benefit of Pennsylvania motorists who already can boast of the greatest highway system in the nation. Thirty-nine other states in addition to Pennsylvania are engaged in similar surveys but none is more complete than ours.

The Highway Planning Division has been engaged in the survey since October, 1935, in co-operation and under the direction of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. The federal government is bearing most of the cost of about $1,000,000.

The investment represented by this outlay will be more than repaid. The studies will prove conclusively the type of road best suited to a particular locality and will result in great savings by obviating the building of unsuitable roads.

Situation in China

The north China crisis grew more serious today as international efforts got under way to prevent possible open war in the Far East. Developments:

1. International News Service learns in Washington that Japan and China have been reminded informally that President Roosevelt may embargo herbs to the countries if the present fighting flares into an open conflict.

2. Thousands of reserves pour into Peiping as Japanese are routed in three more clashes and families of American army officers are evacuated to safety.

3. British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden proposes action by Britain, France and United States to restrain Japan.

4. Japanese spokesman asserts Japan will not welcome mediation by other powers in north China dispute.

5. Unconfirmed reports in Shanghai claim Chinese army is torn by dissension on whether to compromise with Japan.

The first transpolar plane in which pilot Valeri Chkalov, co-pilot George Baldukov and Navigator Alexander Belakov, trail-blazed the sky route over the Arctic, landed at the army airport at Vancouver, Wash., June 20. A cordon of soldiers surrounded the previous plane when it touched the runway at Vancouver barracks.
